

EVERY THING HAPPENS
FOR A REASON

Introducing The Book.

I dedicate this book for a special friendship. It was written through reality.

Here you will be able to know better what i think and currently feel for you.

Your dictation was essential to give this book a theme. Everything happens for a reason.

Luiz Fernando Bittencourt.

"We don't meet people by accident, They are meant to cross our path for a reason".

Life can be a box of surprises when it is mean to meet someone new. I have already lived it by myself, but i will always feel like i still can get surprise with what the experience of meeting people can bring to my life.

Since my adolescence the internet was a space where i got the chance to meet people with smiliar interests. Interests as a fandom interaction, the search for a language partner, communities to support a same cause and others wherewithal of interaction. It is all about connection.

The part of meeting someone that you can't have control over is getting to know how that person can change your life. You can meet someone who will stay in your life for a short time, but you also can meet those who will stay forever.

No matter how many miles the person can be away from you, as long as it has the purpose to be real, the distance will only exist in the psychological.

Getting to live different feelings is also something you can experiment deeply on meeting someone new. Your heart is able to experiment happiness, acknowledgment, hospitality, love and infinite qualities. But i could easily say that love is the characteristic which is possible to change all yourlself.

We never know if it is possible to love someone virtually until it happens to your life. That's why i said that life can be a box of surprises when it is mean to meet people. Recently what i got to figure out that i'm in love again, I'm opening the box one more time.

"Love can be as a person personalilty, you can find virtues and flaws".

Love has two sides. The one which can make you feel slight, charmed, happy, passionate and everything. But it also has the side which can make you feel pain, hopelessness, illusion, headache and others unpleasant feelings.

I'm currently in love with an impossible possibility and it leads me to a roller coaster of emotions. Even though i try to leave this amusement park.

I believe life could be much simpler if there was a solution to have totally control over our feelings. The truth is that you just learn how to handle it, it is a constant learning. Everyday i get to believe even more that everyone is here for a life prospect.

"Not everything in life you're capable to understand".

I have already tried to ask myself how it happened, but i didn't find an answer.

The only answer i could find is that i know myself and through self-knowledge i know i love you. What i feel for you is deep, pure, genuine, frank, but your present makes all these characteristics be wrong. While my heart wish loving you more than a friend, it will be wrong.

You arouse me desires of being close to you, taking care of you, hugging you, laughing with you, learning about you, enjoying all who you are. A fact that you should know is that you were also never able to arouse dirty thoughts, and I know that it happens because genuineness is part of my personality, i can't relate any dirt to you. Only purity.

A letter of apology

I think it is something i would also need to write about. Life can be a box of supprises for you too and i guess you have never imagined someone could fall in love with you since you were looking only for a language partner to be helpful with you.

It is not your fault, you didn't do anything to let it happen to me. The simple fact is that you exist, so it happened.

I also would never want to bring some complication to your relationship. I want you to be happy above my feelings and i also will always want you to do the right thing that is to be loyal. I wish you a journey of truth and happiness.

You were able to taught me that i'm all about real love when it is related to be with someone else and that lesson i will bring forever to my life. Thank you!!

From Luiz Fernando To Pablo Apaza.