

Dogs

Por: Fernanda e Ana Luísa

Introduction

We know that dogs are best friends of humans, but we have to learn about some breeds...

This book will show four very cool breeds!

Golden Retriever

Golden Retriever is a breed of dog developed in England to become a hunting dog and wild waterfowl.

Physically, the golden is still robust, median and coat smooth and golden color. Among its key features is its physical expression, described as sweet. Because of all his qualities, was voted the most popular breed in Japan.

Beagle

Beagle is a breed of dogs of small and medium businesses.

They have a keen sense of smell and tracking instinct that makes this breed is used as sniffer dogs in activities as prohibited imports of agricultural products and foodstuffs in quarantine around the world.

Although beagle dogs have existed for over two thousand years, the modern breed was developed in the UK by 1830.

Shih-tzu

Shih Tzu is a breed of dog originating in China.

Physically they can get to reach 27 cm at the withers and weigh up to 8 kg. It is considered a typical pet, although less active than others of the same size.

His name means "lion dog" and his birth was lost amid ancient legends, although I know that some copies were given gift to the Emperor of China in 1640.

Shnauzer

Schnauzer is a German dog type. The word Schnauze, in German, means "muzzle", and the dog is so named due to the shape of his skull, long and strong.

The schnauzer is divided into three varieties according to their size:

miniature Schnauzer

standard Schnauzer

giant Schnauzer

Source:

<http://pt.wikipedia.org>