

guide of dogs

Por: aluisio alberto lucas

golden retriever

The Golden Retriever is a sturdy, medium-large sized dog. The skull is broad and the muzzle is straight, tapering slightly with a well defined stop. The nose is black or a brownish black. The teeth meet in a scissors bite. The medium to large eyes are dark brown. The relatively short ears hang down close to the cheeks. When pulled forward the tip of the ear should just cover the eye. The tail is thick at the base with feathering along the underside. Dewclaws may be removed. The water-resistant coat is dense with a firm, straight, or wavy outer coat. There is an untrimmed feathering on the underbelly, back of the legs, front of the neck and underside of the tail. Coat color comes in cream to a rich golden.

These are lovable, well-mannered, intelligent dogs with a great charm. They are easily trained, and always patient and gentle with children. Charming, devoted and self-assured, they are a popular family dog. Energetic and loving, Golden Retrievers enjoy pleasing their masters, so obedience training can be very rewarding. They excel in competitions. Friendly with everyone, including other dogs, the Golden Retriever has very little, if any, guarding instincts. While unlikely to attack, Goldens make good watchdogs, loudly signaling a stranger's approach. This breed needs to be around people who display leadership to be happy.

maltese

Maltese (in Maltese: Maltese) is a small breed of dog, also called Bichon Maltese, coming from Malta. Although its origin is controversial, it recognizes its antiquity: according to some historians, drawings and sculptures dating from 4000 BC, show this dog as inspiration; About his "place of birth", some claim to be a canine Maltese Asian while others claim that he was a native of Malta, the latter accepts the most common placement. Despite this, the early records found on this breed dating back to the fifteenth century Europe, in terms coming from the Italian island of Malta and used as "bargaining chips" by sailors. It is also believed to have created a legend on the Maltese curative, being easy then find to his gloves made by, for example. Nevertheless, this breed was developed to become a companion dog in principle to European royalty such as Queen Mary Stuart of Scotland, who popularized it in England. Departure and arrival from Europe to Brazil, reached the height of its popularity in the midst of this nation in 2000, when it became one of the ten most common breeds in the country.

Called lap dog, Maltese can reach 25 cm at the withers and weigh 4 kg. Your skin is pigmented red and black, mainly on the back. His coat has no undercoat is dense, silky texture and bright; elongate the body, the topline remains smooth trunk, which divides its coat in half, on his head, is too long and smooth, mingling with the beard . The color is

Rottweiler

Rottweiler is a breed of dog developed in Germany. Dog created by the region of Rottweil butchers to work, soon became an efficient guard and herding animals, besides being useful in traction. It is admittedly one of the oldest breeds, already seen in the first century campaigns of the Roman legions in the Alps, both pastoring as guarding prisoners. It is said that Emperor Nero had copies in his palace to discourage intruders. The Rottweilers were also used to save money on long journeys. Due to its usefulness, it has become popular throughout the world. It's a race described as exemplary smart, brave and devoted. Physically is a strong animal, and short black coat with mahogany markings, is rugged and compact structure, which transpires strength, agility and endurance.

Australian Drover

Australian drover (in English: Australian Cattle Dog) is a breed of dog originating in Australia. Despite recent, there is still speculation about the breeds involved in the crosses that generated this cowboy. However, it is possible that its development has begun with the British migration, since the environment was totally different, and that an animal would adapt these new conditions was necessary. Several attempts were made with native animals and English, until they reached a standard thanks to the efforts of Mr. Thomas Hall of Muswelbrook, who for thirty years, perfected the race, first described in 1902. Animal herding considered efficient and rustic look, can weigh up to 25 kg.

fila brasileiro

The Fila Brasileiro is a courageous, powerful Mastiff. It is amenable with its human family, making a very loyal loving companion. Extremely dedicated to his owner. A Fila will protect you without a moments hesitation. He feels that is why he is there. Once you bond with your Fila you and your family will become his whole world. You do not teach your Fila to protect you, as he does this on his own. It is the breeds nature to be loyal and protective of his family. They love kids in their own family and take a lot of abuse from them. Ask anyone who has kids and Fila's and they will tell you how unbelievable it is how gentle they are with the children in the family. Fila's make great family pets and are gentle, loving, loyal and very protective. They will also bond with other pets in your home. Outstanding courage, determination, and bravery are part of his.